Royal view

Overlooking one of the most beautiful bays in Crete, the Elounda Bay Palace's setting is truly blissful. No wonder it has been named a Leading Hotel of the World

If choosing a hotel is like choosing a home (it is, after all, your home during your stay), it essentially comes down to location. And set as it is around the glorious Mirabello Bay, Elounda Bay Palace has it in bucket and spades. Expansive windows frame the breathtaking view from almost every room. Cobalt seas merge with the aquamarine waters of the resort's innumerable infinity pools. And what better backdrop to fine dining – Greek, Italian, Asian, Polynesian and fusion cuisine at the fabulous new restaurant-bar F – than the twinkling expanse of a moonlit bay?

But as you would expect from a Leading Hotel of the World, the Elounda Bay Palace is far more than a pretty place. One of the finest five-star hotel-and-villa complexes in Crete, it offers a choice of rooms, suites and bungalows (opt for the Exclusive Club, along with a marble-lined gym, a butler and a private chef, you get those pool views all to yourself). Water is, naturally, a recurring theme, whether diving, sailing, water-skiing or simply dipping a languid toe in to cool off after a sun-drenched spell on one of the two private beaches. There's also tennis, a beauty and fitness centre and golf at the 18-hole Crete Golf Club, at which guests enjoy privileged access. And talking of privileges, anyone choosing to take advantage of Elounda Bay Palace's 'Honored Guest Program' can enjoy a range of special treats. All in all, Elounda Bay Palace is the kind of exquisite retreat to which you will always want to return – especially for those views.
